

Have a great weekend

4 May 2007 by JR

I hope you all have a great time and some delicious wines over this weekend (a prolonged one in the UK). This is just to say that I shall be judging wines in South Africa all next week and for part of it Julia will be at a technical conference in Bordeaux. We will as always do our utmost to get online and attend to the site but please forgive us if we take a bit longer than usual to respond to any questions.

Any queries regarding membership and logging on to purple pages should as usual be sent to subscriptions@jancisrobinson.com and Rachel Shaughnessy will do her best to help you.

I can't do a podcast for the moment as I have lost my voice but I will try to send some reports from Cape wine country. It will be interesting to see how the wines have evolved since my last trip there four years ago.
