

Chilean Wine Club launched

18 Oct 2007 by JR

The Chilean Wine Club, launched in London this week, aims to offer interesting and high- quality Chilean wines from over 75 producers whose 'best, most exclusive, most quirky' wines are not available elsewhere in the UK. Some are small producers that you may not have heard of, others are better- known companies who are able to offer wines that are not otherwise available in the UK.

You'll find full details on their website. It's a mail- order internet set- up, with a minimum order of 12 bottles but you can choose the make- up of your case. Next day delivery is £5.99 for up to two cases and free for orders over £250.

This sort of venture is a very good showcase for Chilean producers who are often extremely limited in what they can get past most supermarket buyers. A great opportunity for frustrated Chilenophiles then.

Look out for Julia's forthcoming report on this week's giant Chilean tasting in London.
