

Written by
Jancis Robinson
14 May 2012

North Americans and their Burgundian ways

There seems to be a strong force field centred on Burgundy's Côte d'Or driving more and more Americans towards the dream of making Chardonnay and Pinot Noir in the image of burgundy - wherever the grapes happen to be grown.

The most geographically energetic example of this is the new range of three Chardonnays made by Canadian...

- MOST POPULAR Annual membership Perfect for wine lovers £85 annual Join Save £17
- Monthly membership Perfect for wine lovers £8.50 monthly Join
- Still unsure? Find out more about membership and the Jancis Robinson Team. Find out more

