Our spring 2019 collections - a guide

Our spring collections get under way.

The JancisRobinson.com team does a lot of wine tasting throughout the year that doesn't really fit into specific articles, but often these are of interesting, available wines and it seems a shame to just add them to the tasting notes database without giving them their chance in the spotlight. So we've corralled our reviews into geographical collections covering a substantial portion of the wine-producing globe. From fine to frivolous, wallet-pinching to penny-pinching, way-out to textbook classic, there should be something for everyone in the weeks to come.

We got the ball rolling in Spain, followed by the US, with plenty more still to come. The links to each are below with the most recently published at the top of the list.
